

ALL QUIET ON WESTERN HILL—A familiar University of Wisconsin landmark, the carillon tower on Bascom Hill, took on a strange aspect this week as police, National Guard troops, and student protesters swirled about it. This scene symbolizes some of the unreal atmosphere of the campus during the days of active, though seldom violent, protest over black student demands. A degree of normalcy began returning to the campus on Friday, however, when UW officials withdrew guardsmen and police from their positions on the campus.
