

Payments Completed for Sterling Hall

The final insurance payment of $873,633 has been made to repair damage caused by the 1970 bombing of the University of Wisconsin's Sterling Hall, state Insurance Commissioner Stanley Du Rose announced Friday.

Du Rose said the payment boosted to $1,680,932 the amount paid out of the state's self-insurance fund to repair the structure, which housed the Army Mathematics Research Center.

The commissioner said a reserve of $2,088,523 had been put aside in the fund for the repairs. Because reconstruction costs were less than original estimates, he said, the surplus position of the fund will be improved by $407,590.
