Mayor Paul Soglin's role in supporting a book which attacked the Mathematics Research Center on the University of Wisconsin-Madison campus was condemned in a City Council resolution offered Tuesday night.

Soglin hosted a news conference Thursday at which the book "The AMRC Papers: An Indictment of the Army Mathematics Research Center," was introduced.

The resolution, drafted by Ald. Thomas George, Third Dist., and co-sponsored by Ald. Loren Thorsen, 12th Dist., and Jerome Emmerich, 11th Dist., was set for debate next week.

It asks "that the Council disapprove of the active promotion and support by the mayor of the anti-Math Center publication while acting in his capacity as mayor of the City of Madison."

The resolution was brought to the council floor just before its 10:50 p.m. adjournment. A move for suspension of the rules by George to bring it up for immediate debate fell two votes short, 13-8.
